Council stalls court case

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The Wayne County Drain Commissioner has not as yet been taken to court by the city of Romulus and a retainer fee of $3,000 has not been paid by the city for an attorney.

Although six neighboring communities have joined the class action lawsuit, members of the city council have decided to table the motion for the near future.

Questions were raised about the November election at which time a vote to eliminate the office of drain commissioner will be placed on the ballot. The response from County Commissioner Milt Mack indicated that he felt the lawsuit was premature and council members agreed. According to a ruling by the Supreme Court, the treasurer can place funds in an escrow account if he believes taxes were improperly assessed.

Treasurer John Lewkowicz reminded the council of the previous lawsuit in 1983, when the city of Taylor failed to join the class action with nine other communities and subsequently did not receive a penny but lost millions. The city of Romulus received $146,899 as a settlement of that action against the drain commissioner.

According to Lewkowicz Wayne County Drain Commissioner Charles Youngblood had collected funds earmarked to clean drains and used them for the operating budget of his office.

Few Romulus students drop-out

The drop-out rate for schools in the Romulus School System is almost 6 percent. That's not bad considering nearby Detroit experiences a rate of up to 50 percent in some schools, according to Mary Hatwood Futrell, the president of the National Education Association.

She cautions that the situation as it exists in Detroit could "create an undereducated underclass that will fill prisons and overtax welfare rolls."

In Romulus, 116 students left the high school during the first semester: 32 were 9th graders, 23 were 10th graders, 39 were 11th graders and 22 were in their senior year according to a special report filed by Harold Connon, director of special projects for Romulus Schools.

Less than half, or 46 students, moved from the district and enrolled in other high schools. Eleven students re-enrolled for this past semester. "Of the remaining 59 students, 25 were listed as over age, which means they were at least 16 when they formally dropped out of school. The next highest group was 21 students who were dropped for non-attendance because they just stopped coming to school. Of the remaining 13 students, two left to have babies, two entered a youth home, two enrolled in night school and the remainder entered the army, got married or were not Romulus residents," stated Connon.

Arson suspect nabbed

A Romulus man was arrested as the suspect in the June 4 arson at Olympia Village Apartments on Merriman Road in Romulus which left no injuries but 40 people homeless and caused nearly $500,000 in damage.

Michael Martin Jr., 29, of Romulus was arrested July 2 by the Romulus Police in conjunction with the Michigan State Police Arson Task Force. He was arraigned in 34th District Court in Romulus last week and charged with arson.

City sewer debt troubles taxpayers

As soon as the mail went out the phone calls came in. When Romulus residents received their tax bills last week, many called to question the items listed, particularly the unfamiliar sewer debt.

According to Romulus Tax Assessor Matt Raftary, the sewer debt was levied 25 years ago but not charged for the past four years because of a ruling by the State Attorney General who saw a discrepancy of surplus and deficit funds in the sewer debt account.

It was in 1961 that residents voted 7-mills for the improvement of the city sewer system. As the state equalized value increased, equity was built up and in 1975 the millage levied was decreased to 3 mills, one-half for water and one-half for sewer.

At that time, the finance department allocated all 3 mills to the water fund which built up a $3 million surplus there and a $3 million deficit in the sewer account.

In 1981, the attorney general looked into the discrepancy and determined the city had to pay the deficit out of the general fund. "We reduced services and made do," said Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally. The city could then not levy taxes for water and sewer until 1984.

"We didn't put the millage back on to the bills because of hard economic times and high unemployment. Now we feel the community has sufficiently grown enough to pay this debt. Only this time the city will levy a 1.4 mill rate," said McAnally.

"This is not an increase but a reinstatement of an existing tax," said Raftary. "The city found it necessary to put the millage back on the tax rolls to meet budgetary needs. For the average resident taxpayer this will amount to an additional $25 per year."

This amount reflects the average amount of $35,000 for a Romulus home.

"The city of Romulus does have the lowest city millage rate in the county and possibly the state and that's because we're frugal," emphasized Raftary.

"There is good news," said McAnally. "Water rates have decreased. Citizen's tax bills will be reduced about $3-4 per year."

The outstanding sewer debt amounts to $7.9 million and should be paid by the year 2003.

"They didn't notice when we took the millage for the sewer debt off the tax bills but when we put it back on, our new phone system got a workout," admitted Raftary.

Tax break

Company secures 6-year abatement

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The pot of gold at the end of the rainbow was envisioned by members of the Romulus City Council Monday night when they approved a six year tax abatement to Heat Technologies, Inc. a new company opening on Northline Road which promises 40 permanent jobs at the estimated $2.5 million facility.

Heat Technologies was incorporated in February of this year and is owned by Ron Palmer of Grosse Isle. Palmer has also owned and operated Horizons Unlimited, Inc. located in Romulus since 1974 and founded in Lincoln Park during the 1940s.

Palmer and Horizons Unlimited were recently awarded the 87th place on the list of 100 private Michigan Businesses who were the fastest growing companies in the state. Their five-year compound annual rate of revenue growth was 23.32 percent.

Since he opened Horizons in 1974, and moved to new facility on Northline Road the building has expanded from an original 16,000 sq. ft. to its current 65,000 sq. ft. The number of employees increased from 30 to its present size of 215.

Horizons manufactures metal fasteners similar to screws, nuts and bolts for use by several auto manufacturers. They also produce sockets for the Craftsman brand at Sears.

"Heat Technologies Inc. will be in the business of providing heat treating services to manufacturing companies including, but not limited to Horizons Unlimited, Inc.," said Palmer whose facility would accept metal products from customers, utilize the heat treat process and return the products to the customer. The heat process strengthens the metal.

Members of the city council approved the expansion and renovation of a building next door to Horizons for use by Heat Technologies. The building will be expanded from 12,000 sq. ft. to 16,800 sq. ft. with completion this month. "The current state equalized value of the facility is $126,000 on which we pay annual taxes of $9,000. After completion of the expansion, property taxes would be increased to approximately $11,000," said Palmer.

"The purchase of the four heat treat furnaces plus secondary and peripheral equipment for the new operation is expected to cost $2.5 million and would be in place no later than June 1989.

The above expansion is expected to provide 40 new permanent positions as well as significant construction jobs and additional use of area business. . . .

"The above expansion is expected to provide 40 new permanent positions as well as significant peripheral business to the city in terms of construction jobs and additional use of area business such as restaurants, hardware stores, transportation business, etc. both during construction and on an ongoing basis as the business as the business gets into operation," said Palmer.

Commissioner named

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Two age groups who devote the most time to recreation were not represented on the Recreation Commission until Monday when members of the city council voted to add a senior citizen and, possibly in November, a high school senior to the commission. The change was the suggestion of Recreation Director Debbie Dick.

Dorothy Icenogle was appointed to represent the senior adult group and fill the vacancy created when Mike Wojtylko resigned. "An excellent choice," said Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally. "She is very involved in many senior adult programs already," said Dick. The term expires Nov. 1 of this year.

"The next age group we were missing input from were high school age students. I would like to work through the teachers at the high school in finding a junior or senior to serve on the commission come November if there is a vacancy on the recreation commission," said Dick.

Her suggestion was accepted and approved by members of the city council.

Public pleased with new pastor

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

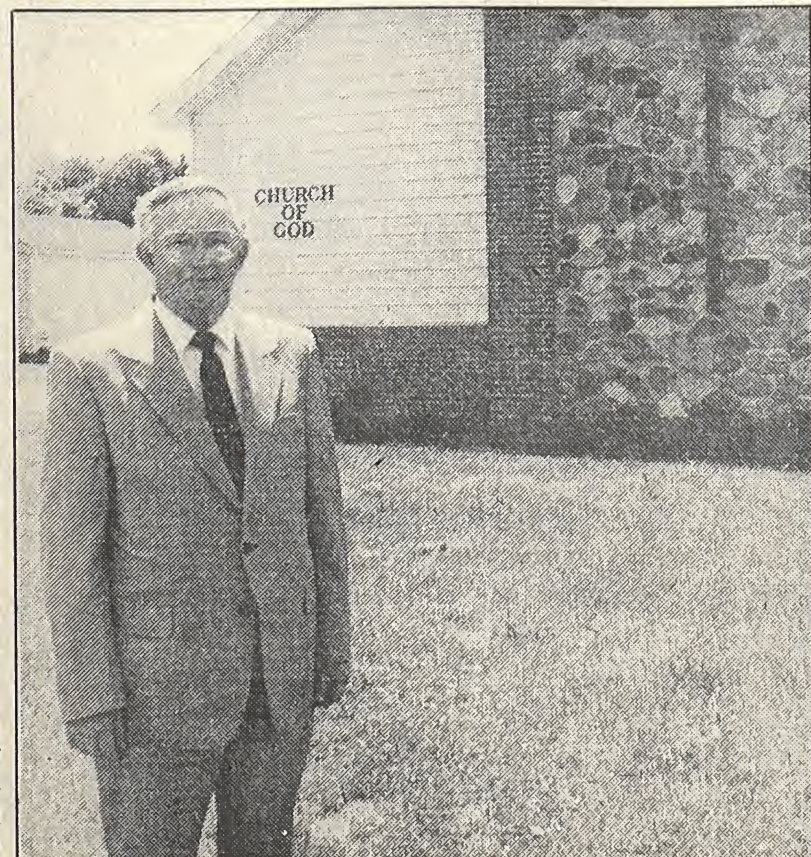

The Rev. Douglas Bishop brought 24 years of pastoral service to the Romulus Church of God when he was recently installed as pastor. His appointment includes not only the usual duties associated with his title, but also those of principal at the church sponsored school, Romulus Christian Academy on Wayne Road.

"I've never been a principal before. I don't expect the job to be easy but more involved. Changes are being made at the academy this year. Last year 61 students were enrolled. This year we expect about the same number because of the concentration on improvements in the school," said Bishop.

Bishop is a native of South Carolina and met his wife, Sarah Dean Vaughan there. They have four sons, Douglas Jr., Steven, William Bruce and Paul. He, his wife and two of their sons now reside in Romulus. When asked how he liked Romulus he replied, "I like it a lot!"

After attending Holm's Bible School, Columbia Bible College and Bob Jones University, he pastored churches in Louisiana, Maryland, Pennsylvania and South Carolina. For 10 years he served as district overseer for the church.

A crisis in crime?: Local police chiefs share views

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

If there is a crisis in crime as stated by Attorney General Frank Kelley at the Speaker's Conference on Crime Prevention, it has not reached all of the area communities.

Belleville Police Chief Willard Dockter, a 26-year police veteran, agrees that the major metropolitan areas may be in a crisis situation but, so far, it does not exist in his community of 3,000 people.

Canton Police Chief John Santomauro believes there is a crisis nationally, "not just in Michigan."

"Unfortunately, people form inaccurate perceptions of crime based on where they live," the Canton chief said. "I don't feel quite secure as a police chief knowing that high crime is necessarily in Detroit."

focus on crime

Inkster Police Chief James Buckley agrees with Kelley's statement primarily because of the doubling of the number of breaking and enterings that have occurred in the past new months. Buckley has no explanation for the recent increase in the robberies.

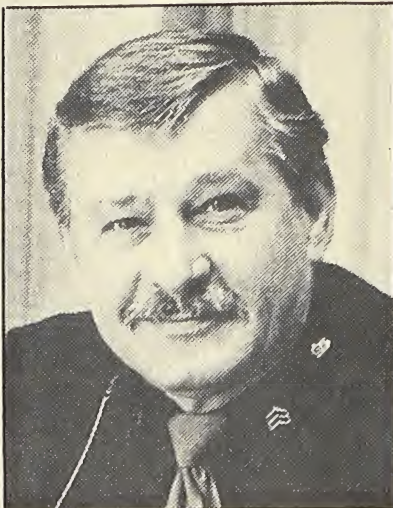

Buckley said the three steps he would like to take to reduce crime are:

- Instill the attitude in people that crime can happen to them.
- Educate people on how to prevent crime from happening to them.
- Get the people of Inkster involved with their neighborhood groups, make them care about each other and act as "watchdogs" against neighborhood crime.

Dockter believes that some of the problems can be solved by solving the crisis in the prisons.

"Crowded prisons create a problem for law enforcement," he said. "We need more prisons to house those convicted of violent crimes but the problem is that police officers generally do a fine job of enforcement and apprehension, and when the defendants get into the court and are convicted, judges are reluctant to hand out jail terms because when you shove a hold-up man in the front door of the jail, a rapist is released at the rear door because of the overcrowding. I don't see it as the fault of the court."

The Canton police chief said his department has already taken some steps to aid in crime prevention.

"We have a full-time crime

prevention officer. His responsibilities would include the educating of senior citizens as well as educating school kids and anyone else. He is a community relations worker," Santomauro said.

Opportunity eluded young man slain while in prison

Ray Downey of Romulus was a "sensitive and energetic kid."

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

A fellow prisoner in Wayne County Correctional Facility has been charged in the stabbing death of Raymond Downey, 21, of Romulus who died in his bunk on May 31.

Friends and relatives describe Raymond as a "sensitive and energetic kid." Active in sports, he had earned a room full of trophies. "He was a straight A student who was offered college scholarships when he was 14 years old," said his mother Carol Downey, who with her husband Jim (Ray's step-father), their two children, Ron, 19, and Amy, 14, provided the perfect setting for another All-American family.

"We were a family who got along and did things together. The boys played sports and my husband was a coach. My daughter was a cheerleader and I worked the concession stand. It was a family thing," Carol Downey, the victim's mother, recalled.

"Ray was into the family thing. He always liked it. Sure, we had our disagreements but that's normal.

"The last time I talked to him. He told me he wanted a change. 'I'm going back to school,' he said. When he came home he wanted to start college to study social work and psychology. He wanted to help teenagers. He said, 'I've lived it and been through it. I could help,' his mother remembered.

Downey was serving a one-year term for violating his parole. Although his request for parole was denied in February, he was confident of "getting out" and starting fresh. "He hated prison," his mother said.

Carol Downey attributed her son's downfall to the use of illicit drugs. "When he was 14 years old, he got involved with drugs. Nothing heavy, but he began to drink and smoke marijuana. He associated with different friends. Naturally, his grades deteriorated.

"He was never any trouble at home. Ray was always involved. His step-dad and I said we were going to keep these kids busy. But they can still find the time to get into trouble. Rich and poor kids use drugs," his mother stressed. Downey was victim of society as much as he was a victim of circumstance, she said.

"He committed crimes when he had smoked pot. He would have these blackouts and not remember what happened. 'I was 18 when I had Ray, so we kind of grew up together. We were friends. Sometimes I think I was the only person who understood him,'" she said.

Downey was 14 when he was arrested for the first time when he had taken the family car without permission for a "joy ride."

"Then he got into a bad accident. Nobody was hurt but he smashed the car in someone's driveway. He wanted to grow up before his time. He was no different than any other kid," his mother stated. Downey was placed on probation.

focus on crime

After this time his mother noticed a behavior change she attributed to the use of drugs. "He was more belligerent but he still was never a problem at home. Things seemed to happen only when he went out of the house," she said.

Downey's next court appearance came because he was truant from school in 10th grade. "The court suggested a boys' school. My husband and I thought if we sent him away, things would change. When he came home he was pretty good. During those two years, he earned a welding degree and a Graduation Equivalent Degree. As a result of this, he probably had twice as much schooling than what would be normal," she noted.

Downey's first arrest as an adult and subsequent jail sentence came after he got into a fight at an arcade. The other participant pressed charges and the judge found Ray guilty of assault. He spent the next year in Wayne County Jail and at a minimum security camp. "He wasn't out two weeks when while he and my other son were having a party while my husband and I were away, Ray, while under the influence, broke into the house next door. He was arrested for breaking and entering and sentenced to one year in the Wayne County Jail. Later he was paroled to a half-way house and violated that parole by ignoring the curfew hours," she recalled.

His sentence was one year at the Wayne County Correctional Facility. Although he was up for parole and that request denied, "Ray looked forward to getting out and doing better," his mother said.

"The last time I saw him, he cried. He said, 'There are so many things that I can't do anymore, like vote, join the service and I'll have a hard time finding a job. I would like to erase these past few years of my life and go back. But I know I must look forward. I have to look forward. I'm looking forward to coming home. I feel different now.'"

Twenty-one year old Raymond L. Downey never finished college. He never came home. On Saturday, May 31, he was stabbed to death by a fellow inmate.

Scam surfaces

Summer time is here and along with balmy days and sunny skies, the itinerant "criminal gypsies" are again on the road.

Residents of the Wayne-Palmer Road area of Westland have registered complaints about a company reportedly based in Romulus which has collected deposits on asphalt paving work which they either did not start or did not complete. Westland police said they have received other complaints from people claiming that they have been overcharged for asphalt paving work.

In one instance the workmen collected a $300 deposit on a $600 contract and in another case a $400 deposit was taken on a $750 job. In neither instance was any paving work done, the police said. The firm, known as T.J.'s Asphalt, has done some legitimate work in the area, a police spokesman said. At the present time, there are several legitimate contractors doing asphalt paving jobs in the Wayne-Palmer Road area.

Police are continuing to investigate the complaints. In the meantime, they warn homeowners to check with the Better Business Bureau or with the police department if they are approached by a suspicious contractor or workman.

Parlor ordinance OK'd

Romulus does have a massage parlor and last week members of the city council enacted an ordinance regulating such facilities.

Initially, it was reported that there were no such establishments in Romulus. But according to Mayor Beverly McAnally the reason for the ordinance was because of the somewhat deceptive means which that establishment received licensing in the city.

So to clarify the questions for similar future situations members of the council approved not only the ordinance but this week approved a fee schedule. The annual license fee per establishment is $100.

news in brief

"THE CITY OF ROMULUS PROVED IT AGAIN," said Mayor Beverly McAnally at the Annual Municipal Officials Conference hosted by Congressmen John Dingell and William Ford at the Airport Hilton Inn in Romulus last month. More than 100 top officials attended the day-long affair which offered five different presentations: Fiscal Year 1987 Budget and Gramm-Rudman; The Impact on Michigan Communities; Strategic Planning for the Future; More Bang for the Buck: How to make technology work for you; Prospects for Tax Reform: What it means for localities; and Federal Agencies discussed which programs are still funded and how local governments can best compete for the funds.

"This meeting again emphasized the importance of the city of Romulus as host of regional affairs because of its centrality in southeastern Michigan. Many of the progressive ideas presented at the conference, I'm proud to say, were initiated by this city several years ago," said McAnally.

NOMINATIONS FOR OFFICE ON THE ROMULUS SCHOOL BOARD were accepted by the board members at the regular board meeting Monday evening. There were no changes and Kenneth Berliin remains president, Jo Ann Marviesin is vice-president, Sandra Langley is secretary and Mary King is treasurer. This will be their second consecutive one year term on the school board, respectively.

The board of seven members also includes the remaining trustees: Daniel Bales, Pat Patterson and Edward Wilkerson. The special meeting which is conducted once a year on the second Monday of July also selected the attorney and auditor, scheduled the meetings and adopted rules of order and previous policies.

GIVE A KID A JOB is the plea from Margaret Leduc, director of the Youth Assistance Program in Romulus. Responses from young people 13 to 16 years old flooded the office and more jobs are necessary to keep this army busy according to Leduc.

"Are you parents tired of dragging the kids to the store with you?"

Would you like to enjoy a night out in your favorite restaurant without a food fight? Put a youth to work," stated Leduc.

"There are youths all over the city willing to babysit, wash walls or cut grass. Hire one of our anxious and willing-to-please young people. For further information call 941-8585."

TAYLOR AMBULANCE SERVICE offers a new scheduling system which will eliminate the need to use the 24-hour station now located on Goddard Road. The company also sites extensive repairs to the building as another reason for the change. T.R. Buckles, operations manager, stated that "this should prove beneficial to the city of Romulus and ourselves."

"Let me reassure you that by no means will this move compromise the ambulance service to the city and its citizens. By changing our dispatch system, we can provide better care and response times," he said.

Taylor was the only ambulance service with an office in Romulus.

Patio power

The winner of the perfect patio contest conducted at the Romulus Senior Towers was Nellie Zwalesky, right, and Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally presented her with the prize. Second place went to Maxine Goachee, Ivah Niemi was third and Alice Briggs was awarded fourth place. The grounds of the towers were recognized with an honorable mention.

Romulus family loves their livestock

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Six years ago the Van Assche family moved from the subdivisions of Dearborn Heights to some rural acreage on Eureka Road in Romulus. Since then, the Wayne County Fair has become somewhat of a tradition with the eight children in the family-and the tradition includes the raising and exhibiting of champion livestock.

This year, 14-year-old veteran John has entered his 200 pound pig "Missy." In 1984 and 1985, he and his oldest brother, Jim, entered a pig which earned the boys recognition for junior showmanship the first year and lightweight champion the second year. John enters alone this year for the first time but still anticipates a winner.

Over the years the family has raised goats, ponies, ducks, chickens, polish chickens and geese. The family has bred some animals but prefers to just raise them, according to Betty Van Assche, the mother of the brood.

"My husband, Jim, encourages it," said Betty. "He had once raised chickens and liked it. He likes animals and shared his enthusiasm with the children."

Today on the family's five acres, they are joined by three hogs, two dogs and an assortment of rabbits.

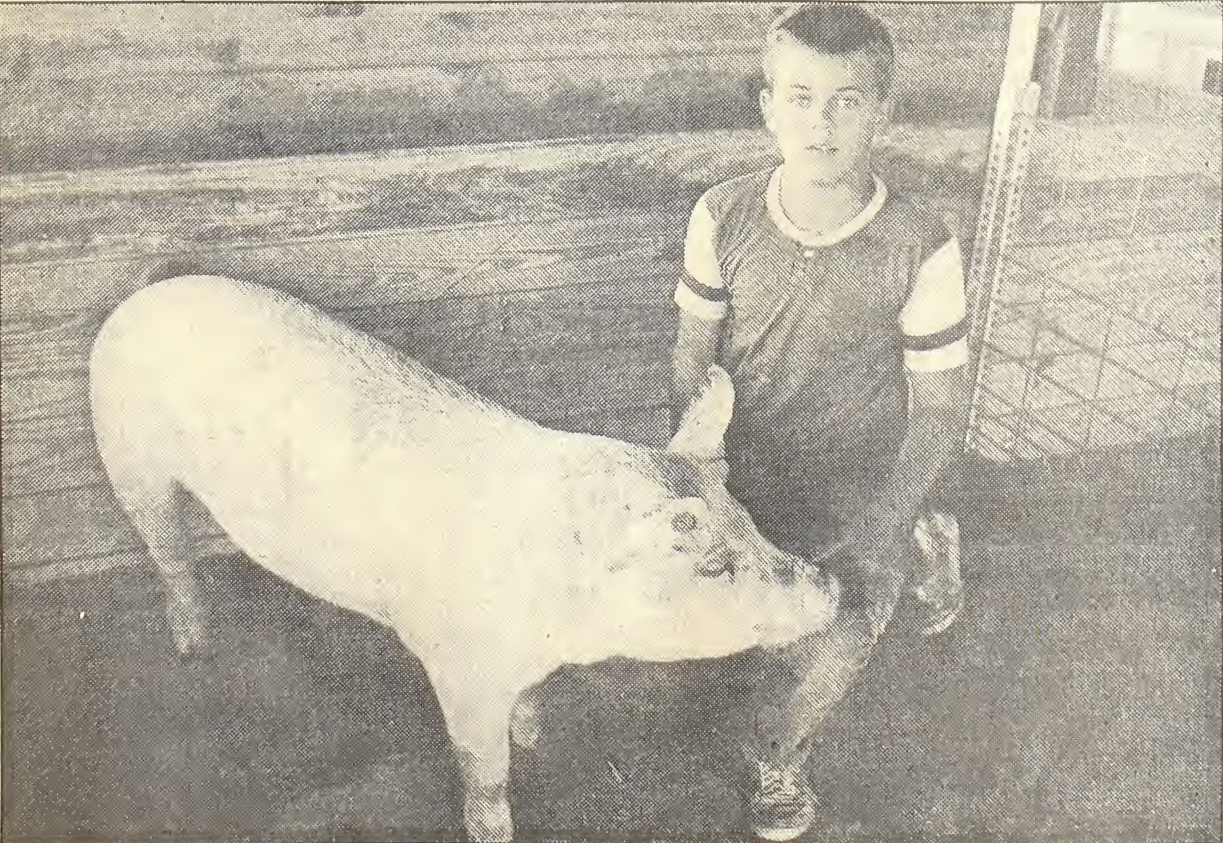

"It seems like we have had every kind of animal except a cow. And that's because we just haven't got one yet," joked Betty.

This year 18-year-old Jim works with his father in the family owned Van Assche Brothers' Construction Company and could not be John's partner at the fair.

"He's doing it on his own. He has fed "Missy" since we brought her home as a feeder pig at 50-80 pounds five months ago. The kids do get attached to the animals.

"At 200 pounds the pigs are the right size for butchering. The animals will be judged on Wednesday and will be sold at the auction on Thursday. There's a lot of work involved but it's all worth it when the fair comes. It's a real exciting time for all of us," admitted Betty.

The fair is open to the public at the fairgrounds near I-94 and Quirk Road in Belleville until Sunday.

The perfect pig

John Van Assche, 14, and his pig "Missy" plan to win again this year.

Cathy Horste

Horste prompts state birthday action

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Van Buren Township Historian Cathy Horste turned back the hands of time last Tuesday to bring the township board and the audience a message.

Reaching somewhere in time, Horste brought out and wore a frilled, pink bonnet - circa 1835 - to remind her listeners that Michigan is preparing to celebrate its sesquicentennial.

"As Michigan enters its 150 year, it's especially important that the government and residents of the township named to honor its statehood take an active part in the celebration," stressed Horste as she covered the individual nameplates of the present board with cardboard bearing the names of the board back in 1835 - names of Ebenezer Eaton, Arba Ash, Alexander Buchanan, Minor

Savage, John Hiller and Eli Bradshaw.

Horste, co-author of the township history "Water Under the Bridge" pointed out that Van Buren was officially created under the name of Huron in 1827 and incorporated in what is now the townships of Huron, Van Buren, Sumpter and the city of Romulus. "This was 10 full years before Michigan was a state and what became the state of Michigan was then a territory.

Historical meeting set

The Belleville Area Historic Society will conduct a meeting 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 16 at the Quirk Elementary School (behind the Van Buren Township Hall on Tyler Road).

Atop of the agenda is a preview of the State of Michigan's

"In fact, 'boy governor,' James T. Mason, declared us to be so (a state) and sent two representatives to Washington, but President Martin Van Buren promptly sent them home with orders to settle our nasty little boundry dispute with the Ohio Territory known as the Toledo War."

Horste also presented a film prepared by the state to help promote the sesquicentennial. The film received outstanding reception from the audience and stirred some of the present township board to volunteer their services. Horste had earlier this month presented board members with a questionnaire asking for suggestions and recommendations for the sesquicentennial.

"Without much success, the clerk has passed around a circular on my behalf, asking all of you for suggestions. As I understand it, it got zero response, and I don't want to believe it. So I'm back here again." After the film presentation, board members did come back with some written recommendations.

In the meantime, Horste said she would continue to work with the Belleville Area Historic Society, which has appointed a sesquicentennial committee, to find suitable programs for the state's 150th birthday.

adopt-a-pet

This is Buffy. She and her brothers and sisters were an unwanted litter now awaiting adoption at the Westland Animal Shelter. Buffy is a mixed breed, and workers suspect she is part spaniel although at eight weeks of age she already weighs in at 8 and one-half pounds. Shelter workers suspect she may get to 50 pounds or so when fully grown. If you might have a home for this buff and white puppy, more information on her adoption is available at the shelter, 721-7300.

dan's dogs

We all have days when nothing goes right. It usually starts upon waking and no matter how hard we try, the day drags on with one accident or mishap after another. More than one of us has spilled the coffee, or had a flat tire all in one day.

The same is true for our dogs. They may not complain openly as we do but, they can have a bad day, too. What amounts to a bad day for them may mean they awoke with an upset stomach, ate grass while outside for their break and returned inside the house only to throw up during the family breakfast. More often than not, the mother of the family cleaned up the mess while grumbling about "that darned dog" under her breath. The dog doesn't feel miserable any more, since he just cleaned out his stomach, so while mom's on the floor mopping up the mess, the dog proceeds to lick her face. She explodes and banishes the dog to the basement.

The basement proves to be a cooler but much lonelier place. Fido finds the chilling floor takes its toll upon his bladder dan a. morris

and nature takes its course.

Feeling relieved but still lonely, Fido figures whining and/or barking will bring about the release from the prison of the basement. Wrong again! The still angry mom becomes even more upset when she sees the puddle left by Fido.

Now she scolds him again and that every-ready droopy-eyed doggie look is put to use.

Mom leaves, stomps upstairs, Fido is alone again. Alone and very, very quite. A few moments pass, (to Fido they seem like hours) and a worried mom returns, "Ok, sweet-ums - I know you didn't mean to throw up or piddle all over, mom's sorry."

The message here is that mom was right - at the end. Had she ignored the upset stomach the dog would have snoozed a good portion of the day.

REPUBLIC AIRLINES TREATS PASSENGER RIGHTS

Dear Letter Writer:

My wife and I recently had a bad experience with Republic Airlines. We feel they should refund some of our money. Can you help us tell our story?

Sincerely, MR

Dear Republic Airlines:

Realizing that the airline travel industry is in the midst of conflict and uncertainty, I still hold the view, naive though it may be, that Republic cares about its clientele. I am an extremely dissatisfied flier who has been treated arbitrarily and capriciously by the staff of Republic.

I am taking the time to write only because, as a businessman, I am keenly aware of the repercussions experienced with even on unhappy customer.

On March 19, 1986, my wife and I departed Detroit Metropolitan Airport for Phoenix, Ariz.

ginny eades

Our return to Detroit from Phoenix was on March 29, 1986.

Upon arriving at the departure gate of Republic, in Phoenix, on the 29th, I was informed by a member of your Phoenix staff, that "... my ticket (return) was no good and I needed to purchase a valid ticket." In addition, your employee informed me that the airplane was "overbooked." After a few minutes of futile explanation, I was forced to charge $195 on my Diners Club Credit Card in order for my wife and met to board the plane.

Upon boarding, it was most disconcerting to discover that there were at least eight vacant seats on the airplane. The requisite tickets were purchased via check for $233 for one round trip and via "Time Saver Ticket" for the second round trip. Upon close observation of the Time Saver Ticket, it is clear that a ticket was issued by Republic Airlines under the Time Saver Plan for dates that are exempt from the program.

I am an executive with a large company am responsible for approximately $20,000 per year in gross sales to Republic. I am not a ticket agent, nor do I have familiarity with airline policies and procedures, I simply rely, although in this case to my detriment, on the expertise of the agent with whom I deal.

Please accept this letter as a formal request that my invalid

Time Saver Ticket be reinstated and a refund of $195 be forthcoming. It is my contention that I was the recipient of unprofessional and harassing treatment by your organization which resulted in financial stress as well as frustration.

It is my desire to amicably resolve this matter and I look forward to a prompt response from you indicating your position.

Sincerely, MR

RESOLUTION:

Republic responded to MR and requested copies of additional documents and MR complied. On June 20, 1986, MR called my offices and informed me that he was in receipt of a check from Republic Airlines in the amount of $195.

The 'write' stuff

Canton woman expands key to success

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Ginny Eades of Canton is hoping to write her own ticket to success in the business world. And with her second office just opening up in Wayne, Eades feels she must be doing something the "write" way.

Eades is a professional writer who has been operating under the heading "The Letter Writer" since 1981 when she opened an office in Plymouth. Emphasizing that her creativity and ability to write stop at no bounds - although a broken typewriter ribbon may slow her down temporarily - she takes on letter-writing duties from local individuals to multinational corporations one by one.

Obviously the name of the company indicates that what we do is write letters. These are from the very emotional to very legal. Many times my letters eliminate the need for a lawsuit," Eades said of her business.

So in demand are her services of preparing letters, resumes and general clerical work, Eades just recently opened a second office for her business on Michigan Avenue in Wayne. While admitting that one-third of the business is general clerical work of filing, typing and sending out mass mailings, Eades was adamant in saying that she and her staff of six workers are not secretaries nor do they work for a secretarial agency.

"The thing that separates us from those agencies is the kind

"I've taken on the archbishop in Grand Rapids . . . the auto companies in Detroit. I'm a good businesswoman but, I could be richer" of work we do," Eades said. "I never call myself a secretary because that indicates you're just a robot."

- Ginny Eades

Started as brainstorming idea while Eades curled her hair one morning, The Letter Writer has earned endless local and national recognition. A columnist for several newspapers, including the Associated Newspapers, Eades has appeared on Sonya Friedman's talk show and Good Afternoon Detroit. But popularity and fame isn't the only goal for the divorced mother of three, the urge to succeed and use her true writing talents to help along the way tower over the abundant press and television interviews.

While only about one-third of her business involves writing letters, Eades commented that this portion has to be the most interesting and challenging. Eades's letter to the state Department of Social Services returned a 14-year-old Ward of the Court to his mother last year and a note to one of the auto companies netted a man $18,000.

Resume writing makes up the last third of her daily duties, Eades said, a duty at which she can really excel. A standard $60 fee for the document gives the customer a typed, justified, proofread and sellable resume that Eades says surpasses all others around.

"I'm probably the best resume writer in the world. I can't imagine anyone being any better," Eades remarked.

Some of the customers to The Letter Writer seek relief from their lemon of an automobile while others need a simple boost in the romance department. One customer even requested a resume to be sent to the Statler Brothers and another wanted a script to be used with her spouse. Eades has come through in all cases, only to be unsuccessful in a handful of tries. (The Statler Brothers gave the woman an interview.)

But problem-car customers and broken-hearted teenagers aren't the only customers seeking a line or two from Eades and her counterparts. Executives from 3M, Johnson and Johnson and UWR Scientific are also knocking on her door or calling on the phone seeking her clerical and creative writing skills to aid in their own business. Eades is quick to respond each time with a letter, a mass mailing or a resume or two.

A risky venture at the start, perhaps, Eades will admit, but the business has caught on and is doing well. Never intending to start a business or even open a second office, Eades said her business instincts must include just a small amount of the "write" stuff.

"I've taken on the archbishop in Grand Rapids . . . the auto companies in Detroit," Eades chuckled. "I'm a good businesswoman but, I could be a lot richer."

Job-training agency lauded

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

The Private Industry Corporation of Wayne County is best in the nation for outstanding leadership in job training, according to the National Alliance of Business which awarded the 1986 Distinguished Performance Award to the PIC.

"The Private Industry Corporation of Wayne County serves as a model of achievement in job training in public-private partnerships," said Alliance President William H. Kolberg in announcing the award. "It is one of 11 award winners chosen nationwide for their efforts in building new opportunities for productive employment for all Americans."

The award cites the PIC - which has satellite centers from the main Livonia office in five locations including Wayne - for the highly innovative and effective approach to delivering employment and training services throughout the community.

The PIC is a joint venture between business and government designed to tailor the job-training needs local business and industry using federal monies under the Job Training Partnership Act. The organization provides on-the-job training for low-income and displaced workers many times subsidizing up to one-half of the wages until the employee is trained for a specific job.

Barry Hawthorne, executive director of the PIC, said the award is particularly important because it comes from a business organization. Hawthorne said the award is evidence of the increased reliability the business community has on job training programs such as this one and the importance such programs have on the high technology business world of the future.

"It's not often that we get that kind of recognition," Hawthorne said of the award. "It shows that we are doing a good job here in our overall program."

"It's not often that we get that kind of recognition. It shows that we are doing a good job here in our overall program."

The PIC was recently responsible for assisting Republic Airlines with an expansion project at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus. Working closely with the Detroit Alliance of Business, the PIC assembled more than $1.6 million in commitments to help finance the airline expansion and train workers in jobs for the company.

PIC staffers screened more than 25,000 resumes and played a key role in the eventual hiring of about 1,000 employees for the new Republic facilities at Metro.

The PIC was formed in 1983. A 35-member board of directors governs the operations of the organization, a board which is made up chiefly of members of the business community with the addition of representatives from education, labor and government.

Aside from the PIC's major project with Republic, it has also assisted in the Summer Youth Program and the Michigan Youth Corps, and has helped obtain educational grants for several local school districts to provide job training within the district.

Hawthorne said he hopes this award will encourage more business involvement in the program in the future. Saying the program has come far from the days of the CETA programs of the early 80s, Hawthorne said that the PIC was available as a tool for business leaders to keep the companies full of a functional and productive staff while also serving as a benefit to the local community in finding jobs for workers that may otherwise remain unemployed.

wall street - the week ahead

The current Fed policy is taking on the appearance of an anti-derivative. The given function of current Fed policy is to accommodate administration "supply-side economics." However, producers are reacting to "demand-side economics."

If current economic policy were effective, producers would be producing beyond-known demand levels, reducing unit cost, lower prices. This, in theory, would stimulate demand.

Most producers see risk in this strategy, and may be reluctant to respond. The recent Fed cut in the discount rate, seems to indicate, in the short term, their policy is to lower interest rates; other conditions not withstanding. This policy indication will force yields lower, and bond prices higher. The current Fed policy and stagnant economy will cause "cautious money" to flow into gold and silver.

For this week, the short term traders will open the session as cautious holders. They have a little optimism that the market may rally back to new highs. However, any lack of buying interest will cause traders to liquidate positions and move to the sidelines. For this week, also, intermediate and long term traders share the same concerns as the short term traders.

I see the market opening mixed as it tries to regain a positive footing. Early secondary support may be a positive influence. However, the lack of buying support from bargain hunters will be a negative. The money flowing into the stock market from liquidating bond positions will begin to dry up as the Fed now seems to indicate the direction of interest rates will continue to be down. When it is recognized that bond holders are not moving into sticks, the market will come under selling pressure.

NOTE: June unemployment falls to 7.1%; U.S. auto sales jumped 21.6% in late June; Oil falls below $10/barrel; DOW falls 100 pts. intraday; Fed cuts the discount rate to 6% and the banks lower the prime rate to 8%. . . the lowest in over 6 years. MARKET "AVERAGES": DOW = 1821.42; TRANS=751.38; UTIL=204.05; NYA=139.51; S&P=242.22; VLIC=236.78; AMEX XMI=347.87

Theater manager keeps movies rolling

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Tim Jahn goes to the movies less than 10 times each year. But don't tell that to the 1,000 movie-goers each Friday and Saturday night who depend on Jahn's knowledge of the movie business to afford them a good time.

Jahn is the city manager of the Canton Cinema 6 movie theater on Ford Road in Canton. Manager there since the complex opened in May of 1985, Jahn is responsible for assuring that the flock of people coming to the show each night to see "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," "Back to the Future" or "Howard the Duck" may do so without bumping into one another at the box office or sitting on each other once inside.

With summer representing the most popular season for movie theaters, Jahn can be found in his office adjacent to the candy counters on most any afternoon. Although he can't choose which films the theater will receive, Jahn does know what is "big" and what is "sure to flop" in the Canton area.

"This theater is really different from our one in Livonia (at Livonia mall). Livonia is really a matinee theater. Here we do a good matinee business but the evenings are really good, too."

Contrary to what the Hollywood producers feel is a sure hit, Jahn feels this area enjoys a mix of comedies, teenage films and serious dramas. To illustrate his point he pointed to the huge success of "Back to the Future" and "Ferris Bueller's Day Off" and the equal box-office boom of "The Color Purple" and most every Walt Disney production that has come out.

Currently, the lobby of the extremely modern, red-carpeted complex is filled with patrons waiting to see "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," the hottest film this week. Once at their seats, movie-goers may or may not notice the 3 1/2 inches of extra leg room the Canton theater has in place compared to most other area movie houses. What's more, even fewer people will realize that the seats upon which they are sitting have been overstuffing with a generous amount of fluffy, white foam.

And, most people won't be kept from watching their favorite flick by noticing that two of the screens are silver screens enabling 3-D movies to be shown while two other theaters are complete with Dolby stereo sound.

Jahn explained that these subtle "extras" for theater-goers are carefully pre-planned and studied before any theater is built. For the Canton complex, architects and engineers studied demographics in the area for weeks and designed the complex with customer comfort in mind.

"I think that what the theater companies want to do is not have the people complaining about the seats, complaining about the lights or whatever. They want to give the people what they want and they're going to satisfy them."

Tim Jahn likes the movie theater business because "it's something different every day."

Theater

Included in the new concept of theater design, Jahn said, is the trend toward many screens in one complex. With six screens, the Canton Cinema can almost be assured of playing at least one hit, Jahn said, an aspect of the theaters that has become a must for survival.

But "six-plexers," as they are affectionately dubbed, and their three-, four- and five-theater counterparts aren't the pinnacle of envy in the movie theater business anymore, said Jahn. Down the road at the Haggerty intersection, another theater company is planning to construct a "12-plexer," a complex that is sure to add fire to the already hot game of competition for theaters in the western Wayne County area.

But "plexers" have their downfalls, Jahn said, as most anything will. Before General Cinema, owners of the Canton theater, purchased lighted signs and boards in front of each theater to guide patrons into the correct movie, some movie-goers would find themselves lost in the midst of an unknown crowd and in the middle of a movie they hadn't seen the beginning of as they returned from a trip to the concession stand or necessary rooms.

A small price to pay for the "plexers" perhaps, Jahn admitted, but a price to which movie-goers should become accustomed as the multi-screen movie house becomes the norm instead of the mere thrill that it was just five years ago.

"It just makes more sense to have a lot of theaters. You really don't know which movie is going to do what. If you push a certain movie and it does great business, you're all set with one screen," said Jahn. "But if it doesn't, you'll have a whole lot of empty seats."

As for himself, the movie manager of the city doesn't find an evening out at the theater very entertaining after 13 years in the business. While admitting that occasionally he does sneak a quick peek at the newest rage at a theater other than his own or perhaps catches those flicks of days gone by on his cable T.V., Jahn can more often be found at the ball park practicing and playing his love for baseball.

But that's not to say he isn't familiar with Ferris Bueller and his twisting and shouting or Rob Lowe and his "About Last Night" as the frequent trips into the theater almost every night tend to embed the storyline into his mind.

And if anyone should wonder how that movie the other night came to an end, ask Tim Jahn and he'll recite it by heart.

"I see all the movies piece by piece. I know exactly what the story line is but I've only seen most movies for about 40 minutes," Jahn remarked. "And with helping the ushers getting people out, you see the end of the movie about 90 times."

"(But,) I like this business, it's different every day."

In review: Hawthorne Gardens has changed for the better

MEMO TO: THE MANAGER

HAWTHORNE GARDENS FROM: JESSICA

After reading the review given by my competition (D. Gustibus), I entered your establishment a bit skeptical and a tad cynical. In other words, I was HOT!

I tried to slide down the banister leading to the public dining room (I did not use the golf or banquet entrance) but my dad wouldn't let me.

I tried to frighten your hostess as we entered with a mad dash to what looked like a white twinkling Christmas tree, but she never got flustered. Need a high chair or booster she asked as she led us to a table in the middle of the dining room. No thanks, but how about that secluded corner booth on the other side of the dining room so that mom could nurse Jeffy? (if needed). No problem and no frustrations. Even when our waitress brought us water in a stemmed goblet and mine went flying all over the table top and mom, our busboy came right over and without even raising an eyebrow wiped our table clean. (Okay, so what if he did take the wet silver and never replaced it?)

Then along came Debbie.

with jessica

OUR waitress.

Did you ever fall in love with someone the moment you met?

Debbie recommended the soup. (Clam Chowder and French Onion) Homemade? You bet.

Ah, but the French onion, it couldn't be served in a crock with croutons on melted Gruyere, could it?

No way said Debbie, but try it, it's good?

So what if it wasn't all bubbly and baked, it was good.

Finally, someone in the kitchen who didn't rely on institutional dehydrated soup bases.

And the breadsticks!

(Hey Debbie, please don't tell that we went through three baskets before our entrees were served!)

Your breadsticks were worth the trip in itself!

The wine list, although small, was well stocked and VERY reasonably priced. Mom and Dad couldn't get over the Sutter Home White Zinfandel at only $8.95 a bottle!

Ah, back to delightful Debbie. . . .

We ordered the lingunie ($5.75) and the broiled trout. ($6.25)

Well, into each life a little rain must fall.

Blah, blah, blah, and bland, bland, bland.

The salads? ahem! Dad's had a big chunk of white lettuce heart. Mom's wasn't much better.

Would you believe that Debbie timed everything perfectly and even made the most mediocre dinner something special?

When told the entrees were nothing to crow about, Debbie smiled, apologized, offered alternatives and never once got flustered. (The sign of a professional waitress.)

We were a little disappointed that you were out of homemade yogurt and cheesecake that evening. Debbie did her best to push the rice pudding but we opted for a leisurely stroll down to the golf course.

Suggestion: How about opening the course to walkers after 7 p.m., who wish to walk-off their dinner on a beautiful summer's eve? Or maybe cocktails and after-dinner drinks on the golf veranda?

How about giving our great waitress Debbie, who made just another mediocre dining experience, a fun night out, a paid night off so she can be with her new son?

P.S. No, we are not related, but it sure would be fun with her attitude and outlook on life!

Dinner for four (Jeffy was a real cheap date and only sipped some soup broth) was $25 including the tip and a bottle of wine.

ANP photos by Guy Warren

I can't believe this place used to be a dark, dingy pinball arcade. (Debbie was also the building historian.)

I'll be back, if just to see Debbie and eat your breadsticks! Tell the chef to lighten up on the white clam sauce over the linguine. Give them a little lesson in food garnishment. Tell the broiler cook that it doesn't take 20 minutes to broil a boneless split trout.

The Hawthorne Gardens have taken on a new look which has made Chef Chris (left) and brothers Rex and Harry Mourtos very proud.

Pen pals meet

Just like Charlie Brown, the second graders at St. Aloysius Catholic School in Romulus wrote to their pen pals for the entire school year.

All 28 students in the class of Peggy Boyd wrote religiously each month to the second grade class of Norma Johnson at Dicken School in Ann Arbor.

During the course of the year, they shared their most intimate secrets first with their pen pals and later if they wanted, the young writers read their letters aloud in class, according to their teacher Peggy Boyd.

Finally, with the anticipation of an entire year building, the students from both second-grade classes met recently when St. Aloysius rode the bus and visited their new found friends.

While in Ann Arbor, the Dicken School children "put on a play, met their pen pals, walked to a park and played," according to Boyd.

There's no place like Home Health Care.

At Annapolis Hospital, we believe that sometimes the most effective medical care can be found in the comfort of your own home. That's why Annapolis offers Hospital Home Health Care, a special program designed to help shorten or eliminate hospitalization by bringing quality health care into your home.

A recommendation from your doctor will enable our staff of highly trained professionals to come right to your home to help with any medical problems or questions you might have. So whether you need bandages changed, physical therapy, instructions in self-care or blood sugar levels tested, Hospital Home Health Care can deliver the medical assistance you need, when and where you need it most.

If you require medical assistance, ask your physician about Hospital Home Health Care. Because quality health care may be closer to home than you think.

Learning the hard way

Some things are, apparently, harder to learn than others.

Or perhaps the difficulty in learning is in direct proportion to the personality of the student. At any rate, it appears that Wayne County Drain Commissioner Charles Youngblood may have difficulty in understanding certain accounting procedures and regulations regarding his office bookkeeping.

In an effort to help him, several of our local communities have joined in a class-action lawsuit to reiterate a lesson the commissioner should have learned in 1983. It was at that time a judge ruled that Youngblood's office had collected funds from the city of Romulus for the cleaning of drains in that community. Romulus Treasurer John Lewkowicz determined that the drains had not been cleaned and further ascertained that these funds had been used for the general fund of the drain commissioner's office.

At Lewkowicz' urging, the city of Romulus initiated a lawsuit, and subsequently was reimbursed a percentage of $650,000, divided between Brownstown, Huron and Van Buren Townships and the city of Riverview, municipalities that joined Romulus in the suit.

In this suit, local communities including Westland, Inkster, Van Buren and Huron Townships have joined in a class-action suit, and a total of 18 communities are expected to be listed as plaintiffs in the court action.

We applaud them, and we applaud the leadership, of John Lewkowicz in the initiation of the suit. Perhaps it is difficult to fight through the maze of paperwork and the court system to prove a wrong needs righted, but these communities and Lewkowicz, in particular, seem willing to take a stand and to do battle for what they feel is proper.

To us, that seems admirable, indeed, particularly when faced with an adversary such as the drain commissioner and the county bureaucracy. Additionally, the communities must seek a common goal and band together if there is any hope of victory in the matter.

Romulus won in the first suit...and that experience has shown them and the other communities involved that there is redress for wrong, no matter who the culprit might be. Lewkowicz requested the approval of the city council last week to proceed with the second suit, which basically makes the same allegations and charges as the first.

It seems somewhat unbelievable that the office of the drain commissioner could commit the same infraction and misappropriate the municipal money in the same manner after being forced to return it previously, yet that is exactly what Lewkowicz contends is happening.

If the suit is successful and Romulus again joins the other plaintiffs, it could recover $80,000 and Westland might see the return of $47,742. Those funds could then be used by the cities to fund other projects, programs or expenses.

These days, municipalities are watching budgets and funding even more carefully than they have in the past. The office holders have no intention of taking any less than the most appropriate action with every tax dollar.

It would appear that the drain commissioner doesn't catch on as quickly as we do.

Somewhere in time

It's a magic place, an island of yesterday. To visit Mackinac Island is to journey back to a time now past.

For some years now I have been in love with history and have tried to actualize through my mind's eye what it would have been like to have lived the life our ancestors lived. As I've studied genealogy, I've tried to mentally take myself back into their lives and envision the lifestyle of their time. Mackinac Island is an ideal atmosphere in which to pursue this fantasy.

The island is located between the mitten and the upper peninsula of Michigan. It has flown different flags in its history. The military fort, dating from revolutionary times, the notorious battles, the trading center history and the summer resort all add to the fascination visitors hold for this northern paradise.

Having visited Mackinac many times through the years, it was a natural place for Susan and I to be married last year when we chose the historic little stone church for our wedding.

There is a feeling about this "somewhere" that has only grown stronger. A few years ago, as many remember, a movie was filmed on the island starring Christopher Reeves and Jane Seymour, the plot centered on a journey back in time in order to pursue a love affair between the two stars.

There is an enchanting theme song in the movie and when you enter a gift shop on the island today, open a music box and hear that haunting music, you cannot help but recall the film. Mackinac marketers have learned to touch all the psychological buttons and in so doing bring summer tourists back each year in droves. Mackinac is getting better each year as long-needed improvements are being made to roads, buildings and landscaping.

Susan and I attended the Michigan Press

Association meeting last weekend on the island, and even the horrible weather could not destroy the charm of Mackinac.

We conferenced at the meeting to learn how to do our job better. We solcialized and swapped stories and information about our profession with our peers. Governor Jim and wife, Paula, provided a rare treat with their gracious invitation to a social gathering at their summer home. The view of the island from the governor's porch is one to be remembered.

I enjoy the charm of Mackinac and the opportunity to step back into simpler times, comparing that lifestyle to our existence today. But this trip stimulated the few active neurons left synapsing in my cranium about an otherwise unrelated matter.

In life we work at various endeavors, meet many people, experience special moments and make a new friends. Occasionally, we encounter a moment in time where there is a coming together, a converging of many things into a time that will not be forgotten. So it was for me this weekend.

There was the remembrance at the little stone church of our wedding. And just seeing this historic wonderment called Mackinac again stimulated my interest in the history of Michigan and my own families place in it. Being with the press clan triggered a multitude of thoughts and memories concerning this business that has come to mean so much to me.

The Blanchards allowing us to visit made me think back to a visit to their home in Lansing last year and the boat cruise they took with us one evening last summer. I thought about the death of Abby, the governor's family Labrador who was the ultimate politician.

Many other memories were sparked by meeting old friends. Eddy Tsia, the gentle

Daddy, dearest. . .

The front page of one of our recent editions related a tragic story of a 12-year-old girl who charged that her mother's live-in companion had sexually abused her over a four-year period. Despite medical confirmation that the child had been subjected to continued and extensive sexual abuse, the charges against the suspect were dropped.

The incident first came to the attention of police when the child was reported missing by her mother and later returned in a "confused" state. Questioning revealed a long pattern of sexual abuse of the child which she had withheld from her mother because she feared she would not be believed.

We do not know what transpired between the time that the mother cooperated in the investigation and announced intentions to press charges and the time that the case against the suspect was dropped. We do know that often women who are economically dependent on a man are reluctant to lose his support if he is arrested and, subsequently, jailed. We also know that families sometimes are reluctant to subject their children and themselves to the ordeal of testifying in court and to any accompanying notoriety.

We do not have the answers, but we do have some questions about this unfortunate youngster and the many others who are victims of sexual child abuse. Who is looking out for her welfare at this time and who is making sure that this kind of abuse does not happen again? Unfortunately, through years of reporting on similar problems, we have learned that perpetrators of these crimes against children often slip though the cracks of justice.

Some 10 years ago, a police officer in a neighboring community related an incident which reveals the problem which exists in prosecuting cases of incest and sexual assault. He told of a 7-year-old girl who was highly nervous and upset in school. The child's teacher talked to the girl and she confided that she was being sexually abused by her father. The teacher reported the incident to the police and they obtained a warrant for his arrest after a conversation with the child's mother. Before they could issue the warrant, the mother warned her husband and he left town. Shortly afterward, the mother and her daughters joined him out of state.

Although the event had happened some time before, the officer's voice was choked with emotion as he related the story. Unfortunately, at that time there was no way to follow-up on the case after the family had left the jurisdiction of the community in which the charges had been filed. Many times, he said, people just move across the border from one city to another when they feel that there is an investigation of child abuse underway.

The remedy to the situation, he suggested, would be to have a national clearing house on child abuse information so that families could not "move away from the charges."

Through the years, the memory of the 7-year-old girl haunted the police officer. Although he handled many cases during his career, he never forgot the frightened, haunted look in her eyes. He never stopped wondering whether someday, someone intervened and rescued her from the sexual abuse she suffered.

We are wondering now about the 12-year-old girl. Is there someone to intervene and change her life? Is there someone to take the frightened, haunted look from her eyes?

Frances gets rave reviews

To The Editor: My hat is off to David J. Willett for his heart-warming story about a cat in "Flying Solo" July 9 edition. If only all people would have so much compassion for our furry and not-so-furry, speechless friends, what a happy, wonderful world this would be.

I also enjoy articles written by Dan Morris and his "Dan's Dogs." Much can be learned about animals from his article. I mail "Dan's Dogs" articles to my friends who have gotten a dog or cat.

What can be learned from his articles is priceless. The only thing I can comment on is the line, "these are not reasons to buy a dog" should have been printed in large letters.

I miss the pictures of the cats and dogs from the Humane Society. I always wished these animals lots of luck to be adopted.

Incinerator gets new chairman

WAYNE — Ralph D. Magid, Wayne Director of Public Services, has been named chairman of the board of directors for the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority. Authority officials announced last week.

“Right now we’re at the crossroads for the improvement of the incinerator, re-building, putting two new furnaces in and complying with all the regulations. It should be a very challenging time,” Magid said of his new position.

A three-year representative for the city of Wayne on the board of directors, Magid said the main issue at hand currently is obtaining permit approval from the county and state governments. Incinerator officials need approval from the county health department to begin construction on the project. This approval, which was expected to be coming, was stalled, however, when the state Air Pollution Control Commission stepped in and asked the Authority to acquire a permit at the state level as well.

“There have been some meetings with the Department of Natural Resources to meet with the consulting engineer of the Sanitation Authority. We really don’t know at this point when approval will come,” Magid said. “We still don’t know why the DNR is asking to enter into the review when it seems Wayne County is prepared to grant the permit.”

“We’re at a standstill but, we feel we may have to go back to court to get this resolved.”

In addition to Magid, James J. Coleran, Inkster City Councilman, was elected as vice chairman and Arthur J. Wiitala, Westland superintendent of the water and sewer division, was re-elected treasurer.

Dogs may halt the mail

WESTLAND — Dog owners are being asked to help protect letter carriers, utility workers and other citizens from the dangers of dog bites by John Shiven, officer in charge of the Wayne-Westland post office.

“In recent years, the public has responded to our plea to keep their pets restrained and we have seen a decline in bites nationally,” Shiven said. “Nevertheless, much is still to be done to eliminate the hazard to our employees and other citizens who might be bitten.”

Shiven explained that all dogs are territorial by nature and even the most gentle pet will bite if it feels its domain is threatened by the presence of a carrier or other people.

“We try to do our part by stressing awareness of dog bite dangers to our carriers, but we rely heavily on the support and cooperation of the community to help us end these painful and costly injuries,” Shiven concluded.

Library hours reduced

WAYNE — Patrons of the Wayne-Westland Public Library, 35000 Sims, Wayne, may have to check out books on a stricter schedule due to the beginning of renovation at the facility.

Marilyn McBeth, librarian, announced that the library will be open only three days per week until further notice. The facility will be open from noon to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and closed the remainder of the week.

Library goers may use any of the other 62 libraries of the Wayne-Oakland Library system during the shortened hours

Leaseway, 3M workers get help

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

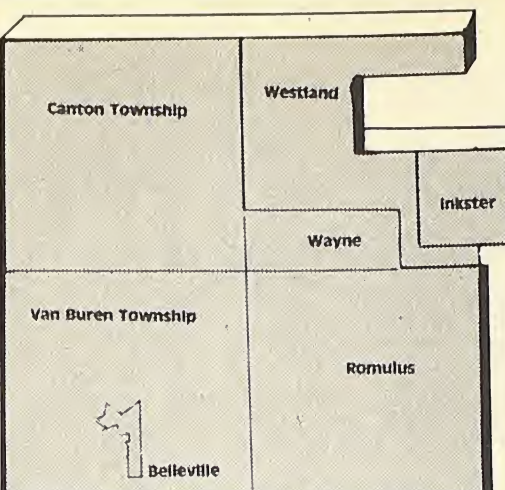

Employees at the closing Leaseway Corp. of Westland and 3M Company of Wayne who are facing job losses this year may be able to find a salvation of sorts with the Private Industry Corporation of Wayne County.

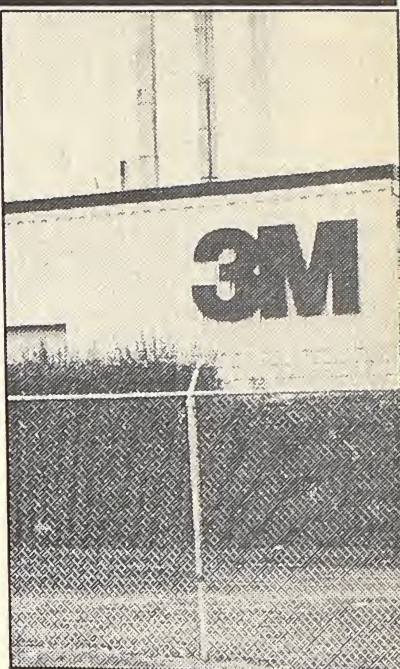

Barry Hawthorne, executive director of the PIC, said last week that his organization has become involved in the retraining and placement of the more than 300 workers at the two plants. In addition, he said, many of the workers may find new employment through the placement service offered by the PIC.

At Leaseway Corp., 500 hourly and 100 salaried workers face job losses as General Motors plans to close the parts warehousing operation later this year. Hawthorne said the PIC is working to retrain these employees in “very targeted re-employment assistance” and find new jobs in other warehousing businesses in the local area.

At 3M, the national headquarters announced late last year that the Wayne-based manufacturing operation would be shut down due to repetition of employees and duties within the firm. Hawthorne indicated that PIC officials have been working with representatives from the city economic development department in hopes of finding a new tenant for the Venoy Road plant, a tenant that could hire the 128 people who could lose their jobs by the end of this year.

The PIC is governed by a 35-member board of directors consisting of business, labor, education and governmental officials from the Wayne County area. Westland Mayor Charles Griffin is expected to be elected to the board later this week.

Whortleberries (huckleberries) are plenty this year and of fine quality.

Champion wrestler of Belleville was easily laid on his back by a gentleman from Bay City.

A telephone now connects Whittaker's, Codey's and Moon & Cady's places of business with the printing office.

A grand ice cream social will be given at Music Hall Thursday evening, July 22, under the auspices of the Good Templers.

The (Ypsilanti) Commercial says that Ypsilanti was a very quiet place the 3rd and 5th (of July). Not much of a puff for the great time they pretended to have on Monday (5th) afternoon.

Petz and Scott, former merchants of this place, came here Saturday and started an auction sale of boots and shoes but Tuesday became disgusted and left for other fields.

The Editor (Roscoe Begole) returned from his home in Washtenaw last Monday where he helped finish the cutting of 95 acres of wheat Monday morning and Saturday night with one self binder.

There is, or was formerly, a blacksmith in Belleville by the name of Arthur Savage. A sign painter of the town who was either a rare humorist or a consummate dolt painted and placed over Mr. S's shop a sign devoid of punctuation points which read as follows "A Savage Blacksmith."

Found: In the streets of Belleville on Monday July 12th 1886, a check on 1st National Bank of Ypsilanti, of $70. Owner can get the same by calling Deputy Sheriff Frank Miller, proving property and paying for this notice.

Fourth of July will not fall on Sunday again until 1897.

Lemuel Randolph, Ira Sykes, Robert Burris and Frank Soop are at work at the county (poor) house erecting a barn and making other repairs.

solo

man who arranged our recent visit to China and whom I've come to think of as a friend, was at the meeting to inform us that our guide while in Taiwan, Paul Chang, has recently been transferred to Chicago, along with his new bride. That, too, brought back memories.

But once again, our MPA President Rudy Petzold provided us with the most moving and inspiring moments of the meeting when he addressed the gathering of editors and publishers. Rudy, as you may recall, was stricken with an aneurism which caused paralysis. He's now able to walk with only a cane and announced that he had thrown his wheelchair in the local dump. He speaks much less haltingly, and the use of his arm is up to 85 percent

Rudy kidded with Gov. Blanchard and jibed with our dinner speaker, George Nigh, governor of Oklahoma, about outranking them both as president. He told jokes and finally, put it all in perspective. "Who could ever think a man could suffer with an aneurism and still have the best year of his life?" Petzold asked.

He pulled at my heart, and what he really said to me was that if he can come back from such devastation and have such a love of life and of his profession, if he can keep on going despite unbelievable odds, the rest of us weak mortals should be able to master comprable miracles.

Yes, we can and naturally do, yearn for a simpler and easier time and life. But we are born to a time and place to play out a role. It is for us to do the best we can with what we have to work with.

Life is certainly not always fair or easy, but the rare moments of joy and perspective tend to make it all worth the fight. See you next week.

Allergy relief can be just a sneeze or two away

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Rhinitis, immunotherapy and hypersensitivity are three medical terms that can't be sneezed at, according to Matthew Laux of the Belleville Medical Clinic, who warned allergy sufferers to take cover in the next few weeks as ragweed and its villains come out in full force.

Laux, a physicians' assistant, reported that the allergy season in Michigan and in the local area has been as bad as ever this year and is bound to get worse in early August as ragweed blooms and pollen fills the air. However, Laux added, the season can be slightly more comfortable by taking heed to three allergy treatments doctors recommend.

"Most people have some type of allergy. Some are more mild and some more scarce," Laux said. "Basically there are the season allergies and the ones that affect people all year round."

Season allergies, Laux said, can be characterized by watery eyes, sneezing, itchy eyes and coughing. These types of allergies are set off by the trees, grasses, weeds, spores from molds, animal danders, house dust and a variety of other small antigens in the household.

Season allergies are just that, Laux said, and last for only a few months. However, more acute cases of allergies last year-round with the victim being allergic to items that are always present in the air or in the house.

Treatment for this summer-time villain is usually one of three methods Laux said. Avoidance is perhaps the best solution to the problem, Laux said, but also the most unrealistic when the allergins include grasses and pollens.

Next, drug treatment is probably the most common treatment and the best for most people. Laux explained that most over-the-counter drugs on the market are good to help eliminate temporary symptoms.

When drug use fails, Laux continued, steroids can be administered to the patients. The injection of these steroids can eliminate the need for regular allergy injections, the last alternative in fighting allergies, Laux explained.

The physician's assistant reported that continual injections should only be used for patients who are sensitive to environmental allergens that cannot be avoided or treated with drugs.

The first step in this treatment is a sensitivity test which measures how allergic a person is to various elements such as grass, ragweed, dust and animal danders.

Injectons are usually given on a monthly basis, Laux said, and are continued for life. A diluted amount of the allergens to which the body is allergic is administered to the body in the shots in hopes that the body will build immunity to them. This process takes at least six months before any results can be felt.

Allergies are very common, Laux said, and can be treated. Displacing the myth that moving to Arizona is a sure cure for the sniffles and watery eyes, Laux said that simple drug treatment works in almost all cases. Another myth of the disease, he said, are allergies to dogs, cats and other animals. Laux explained that the allergy cannot be to a particular breed or animal but only to the danders of the skin, danders which all furry animals possess.

- Other household tips recommended for the treatment of allergies include:
- Enclose bookcases and shelving units with glass doors;
  - Tumble drapes in the clothes dryer on "fluff" every couple of weeks;
  - Avoid shag, twisted pile and looped pile rugs and carpets which hide dust and resist cleaning;
  - Install an air conditioning system to clean the air of dust;
  - In bedrooms, use fabric-free chairs and headboards. Washable furniture is best;
  - Avoid dust-catching knicknacks, bookshelves and wide windowsills;
  - Don't carpet bathrooms, use washable throw rugs;
  - Buy rugs, carpets and padding made of 100 percent synthetic fibers;
  - Damp mop floors regularly; and
  - Keep the bathroom sinks and fixtures as clean as possible.

Bee stings can be avoided

While less common, an allergy to bees and other insect stings can be fatal if not immediately treated. Luax said.

In the past, people allergic to the venom of a stinging honeybee, yellow jacket, hornet or wasp were treated after the fact with preparations containing the whole body. However, a new product has been introduced to the market, a product that is given in gradual doses to build up the body immunity to the stings.

Nevertheless, bee stings should be avoided and a few simple precautions can lessen the risk of an insect bite, a bite that could possibly be fatal.

- Always have an emergency kit containing epinephrine available;
- Keep insecticide spray for stinging insects handy at home, in the car and wherever you go;
- Avoid wearing perfumes, hairsprays and other scented cosmetic products;

- Avoid going barefoot outdoors;
- Do not wear loose clothing outdoors. Wear clothes that are not likely to attract insects - white or subdued shades of green, tan and khaki;
- Avoid exposing skin by wearing long sleeves, slacks and stockings. Wear gloves and a head covering when gardening; and
- When gardening, be cautious to avoid disturbing hidden insects or their nests.

Jump right in: Pools pop up as temperature climbs higher

When buying, do think first

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

The temperature hits 90 degrees, the soft drinks are being consumed by the gallons. Working is miserable and the beaches are crowded. How do you spell relief?

A backyard pool.

While the answer may not be that simple or cheap, backyard pools are becoming more popular than ever, or so reports Keith Erskine, sales manager for Viscount Pool.

Despite a slow beginning for the pool-buying year, the pools have been selling "pretty good" the past two months as steel and plastic alternatives to the hot weather sound increasingly enticing.

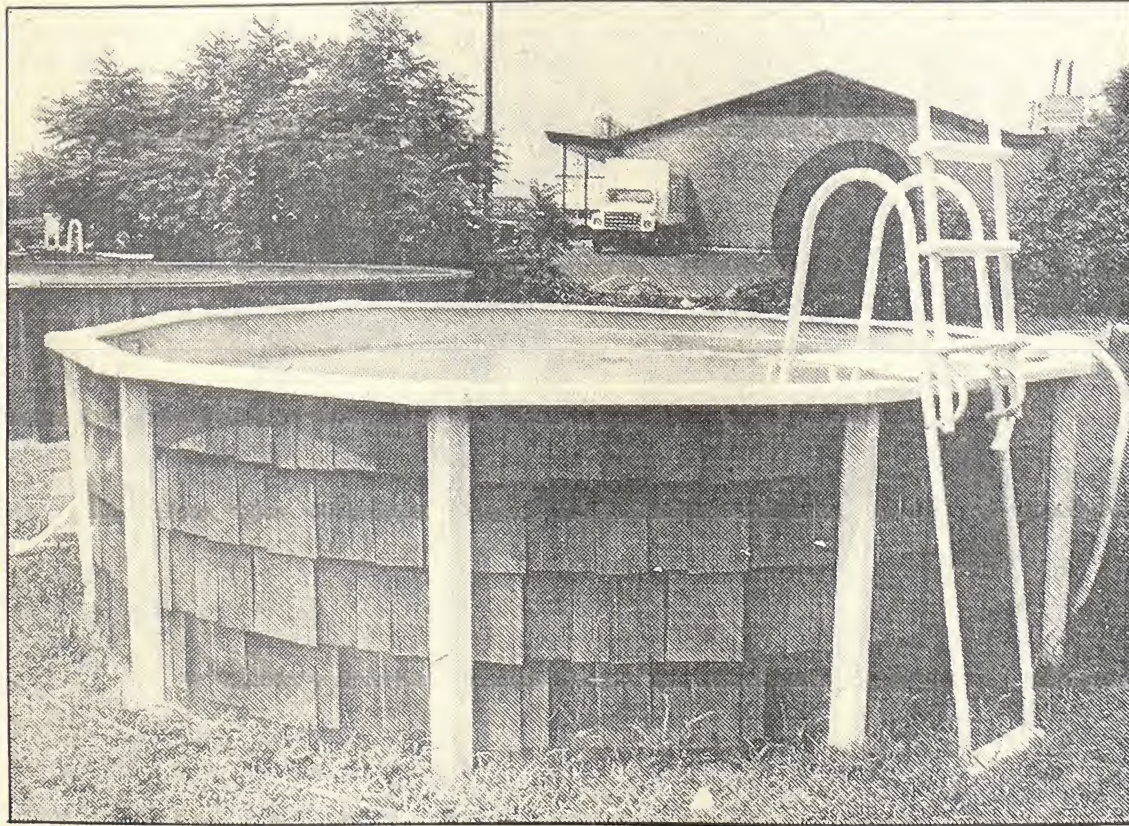

Erskine said that the traditional 24-foot round, 4 1/2-foot deep pool is still the favorite at about $1,000 for the complete package. While these pools generally are purchased by young families having three and four children, pools are great for relaxing and for the health for all age groups, Erskine said.

So what does a potential pool owner need to know before buying? Erskine recommends a close look at the warranty, type of walls, coating and filter.

With a variety of pools and filters, Erskine said to evaluate your individual needs and then contemplate how much you are willing to spend on a pool.

Pool filters are of three types, Erskine said - an earth, sand and cartridge filtering system. Although sand is the most popular method to clean the debris from the waters of a pool, Erskine said a filter should be chosen according to the size of the pool and the cleanliness desired.

Earth filters will rid the pool of most all of the dirt and debris, Erskine said, and is therefore the filter that will provide the most sparkling water. It takes a little more maintenance and care than the other two types, he continued, but can be worth the trouble.

Sand filtration is the most popular and most economical method, the pool salesman said. Erskine explained that this method of cleaning the water is simple to use and cleans the water to an adequate level of cleanliness.

Cartridge filters, the most uncommon and unused form of water purification, are the least effective, Erskine said. This method of filtration works well for small "kiddie pools" and in-home spas but cannot put a dent in the debris formed in a large, above-ground pool, he explained.

Pool costs are perhaps as varied as the designs of the pools themselves. At Viscount, $99 will buy a 3 1/2 foot kiddie pool that may last for about three years. On the other hand, a mere $16,000 will buy a completely-installed underground system complete with Olympic lanes and diving board.

After purchasing the pool - and financing it - the next most important aspect of owning a pool is maintenance, Erskine said.

The sales manager recommends daily treatment with chlorine and a continual check of the pH balance of the water. He further advised vacuuming the floor of the pool at least once each week and periodic checks of the filter and construction and walls.

Pools can be the answer to the heat and humidity of the Michigan summer, Erskine continued, but the buyer must be educated in pools and their use before the heat will subside.

Safety must be the number 1 pool rule

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Perhaps even more important than knowing your pool is the knowledge of safety associated with it. That's the word from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission which pointed to the nearly 300 young children drowned last year in residential swimming pools as evidence of the lack of knowledge in pool safety.

According to the Commission, lack of constant supervision is the primary reason for the drownings of children under age 5. The solution to the problem is simple. Commission officials said, and can be as easy as the observance of a few, basic pool rules.

"It is vital that parents and caretakers be aware of steps they can take now to reduce the high number of annual child drownings," said Carol Dawson of the commission. "The most obvious precaution is constant supervision. Children are naturally curious and have the ability to crawl or walk quickly to the water's edge. Continual supervision around swimming pools and spas is critical."

Keith Erskine, sales manager for Viscount Pool in Ann Arbor, said a good pool dealer will educate the buyer on pool safety and operation before the deal is complete. The new pool owner should understand the responsibilities as well as the pleasures of owning a backyard pool, he remarked.

"You really should start with the filter when checking for safety," Erskine said. "It should be plugged into a ground-faulted circuit."

"What this does is shut off the power to the pool in case there is a short or an opening in the circuit."

Erskine said the proper electrical grounding of the filter is essential since a shock through the filter could reach the pool water, a possibly fatal experience for anyone inside.

Erskine also warned against slides and diving boards in small, above-ground pools noting that the depths of these pools are not sufficient for such devices.

- In addition to these tips, Dawson recommended the following pool safety rules:
- Be sure life-saving devices are easily accessible;
  - Keep toys and other objects attractive to children away from the pool area;
  - Never use a pool with the cover partly in place;
  - Remove the steps leading to the pool when not in use;
  - Learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation in the event of a pool emergency. Never assume the victim is dead.

Romulus man is 'board' with his love

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Some fellows send cards and letters to their ladyfriends, but Dave Helms of Romulus has done them one better – he has rented a billboard at a cost of $750 to present a message to his former fiancée, Kimberley.

Located on Michigan and Hannan Road, the billboard displays a five line message: "To touch your hand, To feel the warmth of your smile, To see the love in your eyes, These to me are eternal happiness! I love you and miss you."

Helms describes himself as a sentimental person and the message, he said, is his way of trying one more time to mend the break in the three-year relationship he shared with Kimberley.

Last August, 29-year-old Helms and his 23-year-old fiancée were scheduled to be married. Then, shortly before the event, Kimberley called the marriage off without explanation, Helms said.

Gondek:

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Citing a background in management, investment and corporate budgeting, Thomas Gondek feels he knows how to run a business. Using this knowledge of the business world, Gondek feels he can likewise execute the functions and responsibilities of the Wayne County Executive.

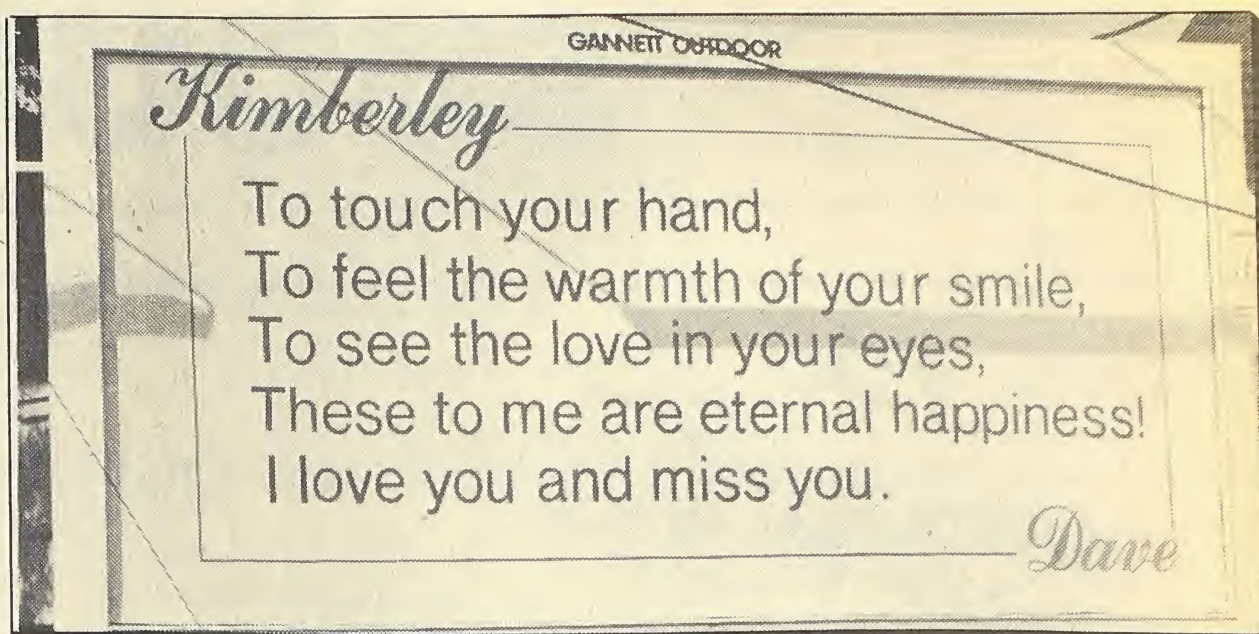

And it's on this "running government as a business" stance that Gondek has based his campaign.

Currently serving as treasurer of Sumpter Township, Gondek has been active in politics since 1973. An executive consultant for a computer company, he is also a master planner and coordinator for a management information system and is a certified corporate and private tax consultant and accountant.

The county-executive hopeful has focused his bid for the seat on two key issues – financial responsibility and people responsibility. It's these two elements, coupled with a lower-key fight against crime and a boost for economic development, that Gondek feels will help him survive the Aug. 5 primary election.

"I am a firm believer that if you see that things could be changed, you should make the change instead of just sitting back and not do anything," Gondek said. "In Sumpter Township, we faced a $30,000 deficit. In four months we changed that to a $27,000 surplus."

Gondek said that if the deficit-spending form of govern-

The Romulus man believes their relationship, like many others, broke down over small things. It is the little things that seem to cause problems, Helms said, and he would like to mend those small differences that caused the parting last August.

Helms drove around the area to find a billboard site somewhere in the Newburgh-Palmer Road area where Kimberley and her family would be sure to see the sign. The closest available billboard site was the Michigan Avenue location where the message is displayed.

Although Helms hopes his spectacular message will result in he and Kimberley getting back together, he feels that whatever happens he has "given it his best shot." All he can do is just wait and see. Well, what do you say, Kimberley?

He'll run the county like a business

ment in Sumpter Township can be turned around, then so can the governing body in all of Wayne County. To do this, Gondek said he would "run the government like a business in that we cannot spend more than we take in."

Included in his plan are satellite county government offices throughout Wayne County to make dealing with county matters more convenient for local residents. In addition, he intends to optimize all police services in the sheriff's department implementing and educating state-of-the-art equipment.

Gondek is also calling for a new suburban mass transportation system, one that would link the city of Detroit to Ann Arbor passing through many of the communities in western Wayne County. All of these features in the county can be attainable, he said, simply by taking a closer look at the county budget and financial picture.

"We have a copy of the county budget. We have taken the budget page by page and we predicted the county would have a $28 to $32 million deficit," Gondek reported. "There are items in that budget that we call a $5,000 hammer."

The county-executive candidate said the budget has allocated funding for a $30,000 per year computer in the county executive's office, a computer that would cost $5,000 to purchase instead of the present rental arrangement.

"That's blatant ignorance. We'll 'nickle and dime' you to death but, we'll make the county more efficient," Gondek said.

The second phase of his platform, people responsibility, addresses issues such as landfills, quality of representation on the county commission and recognition of "out county areas," areas like Flatrock, Sumpter, Van Buren and Canton townships which Gondek feels have weathered a lot of abuse in the form of dumps, poor drains and roads.

The county-executive hopeful also promises an open administration and a face-to-face relationship with the board of commissioners. To achieve this open and "for the people" type of government, Gondek said he would form a citizens' watchdog committee composed completely of Wayne County residents to investigate and be involved in all phases of the county government.

Gondek will admit that his platform doesn't address the multitude of problems and ideas of some of his opponents but, he feels crime reduction and economic development will only come about after the financial picture in the county is brighter. And he hopes that the light he has shed on the finances in Sumpter Township will lead him successfully down the road into the county executive's office this fall.

Ellis – O'Dell

St. Aloysius Church in Romulus provided the setting for the May 17 double-ring wedding ceremony of Patricia Lynn Ellis of Westgate, Romulus, and David O'Dell of Wyandotte.

Ellis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ellis. O'Dell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil O'Dell.

The ceremony was officiated by Father John Budde. The church was decorated with peach and white daisies and the sounds of organ music and bagpipe tunes could be heard throughout the church.

The bridal dress was ivory and silk with long sleeves and a cathedral-length train. Her veil was a hat with ivory and satin flowers highlighting it. The bouquet consisted of peach roses and fresh daisies.

Participating in the ceremony were Theresa Ellis, maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Judith Ellis, Wendy Witezak and Lisa Witezak.

William Ellis served as best man while Duane Griffis, Scott Ellis and Michael Salliatte were ushers.

Flowergirl for the occasion was Amanda Ellis and the ringbearer was Andrew Ellis.

A reception attended by about 120 guests followed the ceremony at the Dula Hall in Wyandotte. The couple traveled to Great Falls, Mont., where they have made their new home.

The new bride is a graduate of Aquinas High School and has attended Madonna College. Her new husband is also an Aquinas High graduate and attended Henry Ford Community College.

He currently is serving in the U.S. Air Force and is stationed in Great Falls.

Both of Scottish decent, the couple did a Highland Fling at the reception.

In New York, Miss Liberty was serving the best

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

Chef Larry visited New York City during the Statue of Liberty rededication ceremonies recently and came back with some tales of his tours. Here, Janes gives the inside scoop on how to host a party for guests as prominent as Ron and Nancy.

While all of us "commoners" were traipsing about the Big Apple, searching for an available "scab-cab" (the biggies were on strike), Ron and Nancy Reagan along with Francoise and Danielle Mitterrand were chauffeured, helicoptered, flown, ushered and sailed beyond their hearts' content.

Not wanting to come across as the jealous type, I just couldn't believe the limos touring about, some with diplomatic plates that enabled them to park on sidewalks and just about anywhere there was a parking space available.

And you thought the transportation of these biggies was elaborate? You should have seen the culinary spread afforded the special guests of honor! Before I whet your appetites for what the head honchos were noshing on, here are a few lines we peasants were forced to compete with.

Did you know that Big Applelians, when forced to eat on a budget, crowd the likes of McDonalds, Arby's and some obscure fast-food eatery called Blimpie Burgers? Yep. And they pay for it too! A Big Mac, large fry and diet Coke (we must watch our weight here) come across the counter at $4.80! Even a 3-ounce hot dog purchased from a corner street vendor was selling for $2. The only thing I noticed plump here were the vendor's wallets. Want chili or processed (cold) canned cheese on top of that dog? Cough up another dollar, bucko! A 12-ounce can of soft drink, when scouted for a bargain, could be had for $1 but, most vendors were taking advantage of the heat wave and folks were standing in line ready to plop down anywhere from $1.50 to $2.50 for a single can!

Staying at the Grand Hyatt Hotel at 42nd and Lexington was no cheap matter either. The $348 per night room (thank God for expense accounts) was nothing short of the amenities offered at a local Holiday Inn for about $65. A European continental breakfast at the hotel, consisting of coffee or tea, juice, a croissant, 2-inch wedge of melon and jam, costs $7.95. Add a weight-watcher-thin slice of ham or two strips of bacon and the cost soars to $9.95. A mushroom and cheese omelette with toast and jam was a whopping $12.95!

Ah, "but that's New York City" you say... home of parking spaces that costs a lease $85 a day! (hourly rates in lower Manhattan parking garages were posted at $14 per hour... with a three hour minimum!)

Now, this reporter (after saving for three months) can handle a $5 lunch at Burger King... but the service... that's another joke by itself!

If you were lucky enough to find an eatery that didn't take reservations and had open seating, the service that was rendered made me thankful I was coming back home. At one up-town eatery it was necessary to grapple the waitpeople. When they ran past so fast, on one occasion it was actually necessary to stand up and flag down our waiter for a re-order or re-fill. Water was an absolute luxury. Don't even think of eating in The City without at least two hours to spend. It takes the servicepeople almost that long just to figure out and transport the check!

Was I being overly demanding and arrogant? Hardly. When I'm placed in the position of paying top dollar for what continuously turned out to be mediocre food, I tended to get a tad negative.

I wonder if the president's and honored guests felt as I did. (Excuse me while I wipe the tears of laughter from my face!) A press release I stumbled upon noted that R and N and 4,000 of their nearest and dearest friends were snacking on something called "Terrine de Salmon en gelee" along with the everpresent "Supreme de Pintade a la mousse des fines herbes," Pommes Duchess and Haricots Verts along with Tomatoes Farcies and soufflé glace aux Lychees." I mean really, when you get right down to it, all they were eating was a cold salmon pate, pigeon stuffed with a pureed mix of herbs, mashed potatoes seasoned with nutmeg, green vegetables, stuffed tomatoes and lychee nut ice cream.

The translation into French only allows the caterer to up his prices by 50 percent. I tried to find out if Lee and Kathy Iacocca were eating off paper plates with plastic cutlery and cute little paper napkins adorned with red, white and blue depictions of the Statue of Liberty, but all the secret service people and body guards were wearing those styrofoam liberty crowns and this constantly blocked my view.

Whats the matter here? Are good old American hot dogs, apple pie and Coke too good for the big wigs? Why the French menu and not something like tuna-noodle casserole and Stroh's?

Oh well, if you're really curious as to what they all ate, put on your best gown, dress up in the neatest tuxedo you can rent, dust off the tiara and play the John Phillip Sousa album while you prepare the likes of....

RON AND NANCY REAGANS INTIMATE DINNER FOR 4000 TERRINE DE SALMON EN GELEE
(serves 10 as appetizer)
(X400 for the party, please!)

2 lbs. salmon
4 egg whites
5 cups thick cream
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
pinch sweet spices

Process the salmon in a processor with spices until smooth. Add egg whites, one at a time, with motor running. Allow to chill for 2 hours. Stir in the cream, mix well. Fill a mold ¾ full with the mixture. Place in a pan of water in a 350 degree oven for 35 minutes. Allow to rest out of the water for 10 minutes before turning out the mold.

SUPREME DE PINTADE A LA MOUSSE DE FINES HEREBES
(Serves 4)
(X1000 for party)

2 pigeons, split, partially bones
4 tablespoons butter
1 pound mushrooms, finely chopped
1 oz. truffles, finely chopped
¼ teaspoon of each: chervil, chives, tarragon, parsley, savory, oregano, marjoram, dill

Sautee split pigeons in butter over moderate heat for 3 minutes on each side. Meanwhile, combining remaining ingredients in a blender or processor and process till smooth. Using individual cassoulets or casseroles, place ¼ of the mousse mixture in the casserole and top with partially cooked pigeon. Brush with remaining butter, bake at 375 degrees for 15, or until pigeon are cooked throughout.

rate excessive moisture. Rub through a sieve or food mill. Place the mixture into a saucepan with butter, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Blend the mixture with egg yolks, mixing well over low heat for 2 minutes. Spread the mixture on a buttered cooking sheet, chill, then shape as a recipe indicates. P.S. Ron and Nancy had this mixture piped through a forcing bag into small papiettes.

TOMATOES FARCIES
(serves 4)
(X1000 for the party)

4 tomatoes
¼ cup olive oil
1 cup fresh season bread-crumbs
1 small clove garlic, smashed
¼ cup lean ham, chopped
½ cup mushrooms, finely chopped
2 green onions, finely chopped

Cut a circle round the stalk of the tomato. Open. Press lightly to remove the juice and seeds and season with salt and pepper. Combine breadcrumbs, garlic, ham, mushrooms and green onions and mix well. Stuff tomatoes, then drizzle with the oil. Place on an oiled baking tin, bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until heated throughout. Pop under broiler just before serving to lightly brown.

SOUFFLE GLACE AUX LYCHEES
(serves 4)
(X1000 for party)

1 (10 oz.) jar lychee nuts, drained, juice reserved
¼ cup light rum
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
5 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
2 cups hot milk
dash salt
5 egg whites, beaten stiff but not dry
½ cup heavy cream, whipped.

Have ready: 1 ½ quart soufflé dish with collar, lightly oiled.

Chop lychee nuts and mix with rum. Sprinkle gelatin over lychee juice and set aside to soften. Beat egg yolks and sugar together till thick. Very slowly beat in hot milk. Add salt, cook, stirring constantly in a saucepan over low hear until the mixture is slightly thickened and smooth like custard. Remove from heat, add softened gelatin and stir till dissolved. Let cool. Gently but thoroughly, stir in egg whites, then whipped cream. Stir in soaked nuts. Pour into soufflé dish and freeze in the freezer for at least 2 hours. Remove 30 minutes before slicing.

STRAWBERRY-RICE FLUFF

1 c. light cream
1/2 c. milk
1/4 c. long grain rice
2 Tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. finely shredded orange peel
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 Tbsp. cold water
1 tsp. unflavored gelatin
1 pt. fresh strawberries
2 egg whites
1/4 c. sugar

In a heavy medium saucepan combine cream and milk; bring to boiling. Stir in rice. Cover; cook over low heat 25 to 30 minutes or till rice is tender and most of the milk is absorbed, stirring occasionally. (Mixture may look curdled.)

Stir in the 2 Tbsp. sugar, the peel, and vanilla. In a 1 c. measure soften gelatin in the gold water; place measuring cup in a saucepan of water; heat and stir till gelatin dissolves. Stir into rice mixture. Cool.

Meanwhile, chop berries, reserving a few whole berries for garnish. Stir chopped berries into rice. Chill till mixture starts to mound when spooned, stirring occasionally. Remove from refrigerator (gelatin will continue to set). IMMEDIATELY begin beating egg whites to soft peaks (tips curl). Gradually add the 1/4 c. sugar, beating to stiff peaks (tips stand straight). Fold egg whites into gelatin mixture. Spoon into dessert dishes. Chill 3 to 24 hours. Slice reserved berries. Makes 4 servings.

City golfers face challenge at the Hilltop

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The site may be different, but the challenge will be the same as the countdown begins for the 27th annual Associated Newspapers-Recreation Department city championship golf tournament. Amateur male golfers will be shooting for five city and one township title this weekend.

The tournament will be staged on Saturday and Sunday (July 19-20) on the 6,416-yard, par 70 layout at Hilltop Golf Course, 47000 Powell Road in Plymouth Township.

And, according to Hilltop pro John Jawor, the course is in excellent condition.

"I think the golfers will be pleasantly surprised at the condition of our course," said Jawor who cautioned competitors that there "are some turning points" to be aware of.

"Even if you have a three or four shot lead, you can never count on winning a tournament here because of the greens - if you're not ready, your shot can zip right past."

And don't try to "challenge" the course, warns Jawor.

"If they try to challenge it, they'll get bitten; if they have respect for the course, then they should do all-right."

The course record of 69 is shared by Frankie Jawor, John's nephew, and Agim Bardha of Birmingham who carded his 69 last year during a qualifying round for the Michigan Open.

The golf pro at Hilltop since 1979, Jawor said "that the conditions (of the course) are the best of any public golf course...and the greens are

'If they try to challenge it (the golf course), they will be bitten; if they have respect for it they should do all right.'

John Jawor
Hilltop Golf Pro

quicker and faster because of the contour. He points out that the five Par 3s "are very important", but the "real turning point" are two par five holes - the No.7 (531 yards) and No. 13 (534 yards).

The 13th has an out-of-bounds on the left side of the fairway and lying in wait is a pond about 225 yards out - the 7th also has an out-of-bounds on the left and a wooded area all the way down to accompany competitors.

If that isn't threatening enough, "The competitor must carry his ball over a creek on the 7th - precarious to say the least, so anything can happen. No one can sit on a lead; no one can ever feel comfortable - it will cost them if they do."

The format of the tournament is set up to determine the 5-man teams for the participating communities: Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Garden City and Canton Township. There is also an Open Division.

Competitors will play 18-holes of golf on Saturday and return to the course on Sunday for the championship round. Trophies will be presented to the top three finishers in each of the flights and a trophy will be awarded to the low scorer (medalist) of the entire field.

The tournament is open to male amateur golfers residing or working in the participating communities. However, only bona fide residents may represent a community at the state Michigan Parks and Recreation Championships to be conducted later this year.

The tournament is co-sponsored by the parks and Recreation departments of the participating communities and The Associated Newspapers.

It is the first time in the tournament's 26 years that Hilltop has been designated as the host. Last year, Canton Township's Matt Wiley shot a 4-under-par 138 to win medalist honors at the Fellows Creek Golf Course.

Defending city champs also include Daniel Sowa of Wayne who also won the Patrolman-Len Anderson Memorial Trophy (awarded the medalist of the Wayne Championship Flight); Kevin Ryan, reigning Inkster champ; Nunio Marino, defending Westland city champ; Tom Singer, Romulus's city champ, and Matt Wiley, who also won the Canton Township title.

Golfers, who have entered the 1986 tournament and do not find their names listed in the tee times, should contact Tom Mooradian at 697-9191 (Wednesday or Thursday) or 729-4000 (Friday).

Wasps win title

Playoffs begin

For the Westland Youth Athletic Association Bronco AAA All-Stars and the Pony All-Stars, Willie Nelson's "On the Road Again" will be an appropriate tune as they head toward tournament competition next weekend at Dewitt, located north of Lansing.

All-Stars, under the tutelage of Gary Pack, manager of the 1985 champion Pirates, will open their competition against Stockbridge at 12:30 p.m., Friday, July 18. Competition will continue all weekend until a winner is declared. The competition is a double elimination tournament.

In the Pony Division tournament, Westland's representative will also be in Dewitt for their competition with the same double-elimination format.

They're great on skates

A young Canton couple, who some day hope to become national roller skating champs, has shown that they are among the best in the state. Jeffrey Angiulli, 9, and his partner, Meg Plagens, (above) qualified for regional competition by placing fourth in the state and hope to skate in the nationals this year. Jeff, who has skated since he was four, competes out of Bonaventure Roller Rink in Farmington Hills. He is coached by pros Dina and Larry Flowers. Jeff also captured a first place in Primary Boys Figures at the United States Amateur Confederation (USAC) Great Lakes Regional Roller Skating Championships held this year in Canton. He is a regional champ and has qualified to compete in nationals scheduled for the week of August 3 in Indianapolis, Indiana which will bring together skaters from across Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Rocks sink Canton

The two top teams in the Canton Softball League clashed last week and when the smoke cleared Plymouth Rock I claimed an impressive 8-5 victory over Canton Sports.

The Plymouth victory moved the victor in range of first place in the hotly-contested division.

Conrad Madeleno swatted a double and chased home three runs as the Detroit Free Press turned back Ed's Sports, while Gary Zalewski and his Stan Market teammates crushed Simpson's 29-1.

Over in the Red Division, Don Dorbash of Canton Jaycees hammered a homer in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game, but Plymouth Rock III held on to win a 14-11 decision.

Kindler attends hockey camp

Participating in the Michigan Technological University hockey camp recently was Canton Township resident Matt Kindler. Kindler worked at improving his skating and stickhandling skills through rigorous drills.

Dolphins make it 2 straight

In a meet abbreviated by a storm that cut off electricity, the Wayne Recreation sponsored swim club, the Dolphins, defeated Wyandotte, 348-210, for their second consecutive victory of the season.

Fifteen Dolphin swimmers posted double or triple victories with Alan White pacing the 15-18 year-old division turning in firsts for the 200-yard individual medley, the 100-yard backstroke, and helping to win the 200-yard medley relay. Teammates Dyanne Sweikowski (winner in the 200 medley and the 200 IM) and Jerome Bradley, placing first in the 50 yard free and the 100-yard butterfly, along with Vicki King, who touched in first in the 200 medley and 50 freestyle, also had excellent meets.

In the 13-14 age group, Hope Wass and Jennifer Work were on the winning 200-yard medley relay, while Wass also won the 50-yard freestyle and Work was the victor in the 50-yard backstroke.

Missy Centers posted victories in the 200-yard medley relay and the 50-yard butterfly, while Jennifer Bosner and Mike Adkins carded first places in the 200-medley and the 50-yard backstrokes in the 11-12 division.

Amy Work picked up three gold medals as she helped the 10-and-under age group win the 200-medley, and also won the 100 individual medley and the 50-yard breaststroke. Sonya Sims was first for the 50 butterfly and the 200-yard medley. Tina Cross carded a win in the 200 medley.
